Wartburg to develop second phase of studies during May Term, summer

By DENISE HERMANSTORFER

Proposals are now being made for the development of the experiential tier of the Wartburg Plan, according to Dr. Franklin Williams, interim dean of faculty.

The experiential tier is the second of three tiers included in the new general education program implemented this year. Three and one-half to four and one-half course credits are needed to fulfill the requirements of the experiential studies, Williams said.

Planning in summer

"A lot of the planning of the program will take place during May Term and over the summer," Williams said. "Last summer was spent developing the foundational courses, this summer the experiential studies and next summer the integrative studies."

Besides planning the experiential studies this summer, faculty members who have or will be directly involved in the new general education program will be evaluating and modifying the foundational courses, Williams said.

New tiers

"This is the way the program was designed to work," Williams said. "During each of three consecutive years we plan to develop a new tier and carefully evaluate those tiers which have already been developed."

Although the majority of work will be done by those faculty members directly involved in the general education program, the General Education Committee acts as a monitor of all the decisions that are made, Williams said.

Students helpful

Students can also be very helpful in the forming and modification of the program," Williams said. "But they can only be helpful if they do it with the attitude of really wanting to improve the courses."

Students have already participated in the planning of the program through the completion of course evaluations, Williams said. Individual interviews with students have also been held to get an idea of how students are reacting to the courses and what changes they feel should be made.

"At this point the criteria for the courses have been set up and we're looking at how to meet these criteria," Williams said. "These classes will be organized different than the foundational courses because they will be more closely related to specific disciplines."

Define general education

One obvious change which will have to be made in the program next year is the adding of faculty members to the foundational courses, Williams said. This is because not only incoming freshmen will be taking the courses, but returning sophomores will also be completing their requirements.

Defining general education will be one of the major goals of the program next year, Williams said. A lot of students, especially freshmen, don't understand general education, and this should be a part of college learning.

Two types

"There seems to be two types of learning in the minds of most college students: general education and career education," Williams said. "But there really shouldn't be such a separation between these two types of learning."

General education should enhance career education, so that education should be much more than just learning specific skills for a trained job, Williams said.

Merge division

"It's unrealistic for incoming freshmen to understand general education but we've just got to keep working at it," Williams said. "It's a part of learning and growth."

Merging the sharp division between the dorm and college life will also be one of the major goals of the program next year, Williams said.

"There seems to be such a sharp division between college life and dorm life. It's almost as if there are two different college worlds," Williams said.

"We would like to merge these two lives together so that the academic aspect of college could permeate into everything."

Another anticipated result of the program is an increased amount of

Names of academic dean candidates released

The names of the four academic dean candidates were released last Friday from the President's Office.

The candidates are Dr. C. Carlyle Haaland, Dr. Edwin Welch, Dr. Edward Angus and Dr. Daniel van Tassel.

Haaland, who was on campus for interviews last Thursday and Friday, is the chairman of the Department of Religious Studies at Wagner College in Staten Island, NY. He received his Ph.D. in 1966 from Yale University.

In a letter outlining his philosophy of education, Haaland said he is strongly persuaded to make available to students both general education, emphasizing a major concern for questions of values, and vocational and professional preparation. He added these factors should complement each other.

Welch, who will be on campus for interviews today, is the Dean of Lakeland College in Sheboygan, WI. He received his Ph.D. from Boston University Graduate School in 1971.

Welch said that he realizes hard times are ahead for small liberal arts colleges. He added that the primary key to success is the attractiveness and quality of the academic program.

Angus, who will be on campus Thursday, March 26, has been Provost and Dean of Academic Affairs at the College of Idaho in Caldwell, ID. Angus did his doctoral work at Pennsylvania State University in 1979.

Angus wants to promote and preserve the unique meaning purpose of a small liberal arts college, stressing quality teaching and the learning process.

Van Tassel, who will be interviewed on campus Monday, March 30, is the chairman of the Division of Humanities at Pacific Lutheran College in Tacoma, WA. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Iowa in 1970.

Slim margin gives Butikofer victory

A 23 vote margin gave junior Randy Butikofer and sophomore Ross Buehler the victory in last week's student body presidential elections, according to junior Mary Holtapp, Senate election committee chairperson.

The small margin was unusual because of a large turn-out of 780 voters. Butikofer and Buehler received 401 votes. Juniors Jack Salzwedel and Denis Huston, their opponents, collected 378 votes.

The vote for the senate recorder was declared invalid because one name was inadvertently dropped from the ballot. Another election for the recorder's position will be this Thursday, March 26, in the north cafeteria line during lunch and supper.

In the race for Senate treasurer, junior Curt Zimmerman was elected.

Problems may resurface

Wartburg College is moving into a new phase of development with its general education requirements.

The experiential tier is the second part of the Wartburg Plan, which was instituted last year with the incorporation of the foundational core courses.

The whole concept of the Wartburg Plan is to define liberal arts education and to join the different elements of this concept.

But, even with a very good idea, problems did develop. The evaluation of the foundational courses showed that care must be taken to acquaint students to a new concept.

Many students didn't understand the purpose of the foundational courses and viewed the whole program as being disjointed.

The college is making plans to develop the experiential tier during May Term and the summer months. The foundation courses were developed in this way.

A program developed during the summer, when school is not in full operation, will probably have the same problems the foundational courses had.

It seems the college is making the same mistake over again. The freshman class can't help but feel like guinea pigs.

Man must learn love from Savior

By ROBYN WEGER and JULIANNE WIDDEL

"You, my brothers, were called to be free, but do not use your freedom to indulge the sinful nature. Serve each other in love." (Galatians 5:13, NIV)

You may already be thinking, "Do you mean to tell me these two know anything about love?"

That's right, although we don't claim to be authorities on the subject. We would simply like to share our views, given to us by a mutual friend, the author of love.

In our search for love, many of us turn to the world and it's kind of "love," thereby passing up the true, pure love that is portrayed in Jesus Christ.

Jesus has given us a new commandment, to love one another as he has loved us.

In order to do this, we must love and serve everyone, not just those closest to us. We are called to love the people that are not part of our "group," both the alcoholic hanging over the barstool and the power-hungry politicians that only want to take our money.

We are even to serve those who make us cringe at the mere thought of being near them.

To love each person we come into contact with is to say, "No matter what this person does to me, I will show them the same kind of love Jesus has shown me through his crucifixion and grace."

It is not possible for us to love in this way by human nature. We can attain this type of love through a close relationship with Jesus Christ.

If it is a heavy burden, we need only to cast our worries and cares upon Jesus, who is willing to bear them for us.

Our calling as Christians is to love. If we desire a share of the kingdom, we must show this Christ-like love to every person we meet.

As each new day arrives, let all of us try to show a little more love to one another than we did the day before.

There is great joy to be found in changing the focus of our attention from ourselves to those around us.

Let us all begin to walk with Christ, and in that walk to "walk in love, as Christ loved us and gave himself up for us. . ." (Ephesians 5:2, RSV)

Band director appreciates concert help, attendance

I would like to give a special thank you to everyone who in some way helped with the band's concert, "Sousa: One More Time."

It is a wonder when one starts to realize all the work that must be done outside the band room in order to produce this event.

On behalf of the band, I would also like to thank those of you who attended the performance. Your attendance provided us with a spirit-filled concert.

Dr. Robert Lee, band director

Ujamaa Week organizer thanks students, staff

On behalf of the Ujamaa Week Committee, I would like to extend a warm thanks to students, faculty and members of the staff who helped with and participated in Ujamaa Week. Without your interest and support, our goal of $2300 for a school house in Tanzania could not have been realized.

The auction raised $1758.50, and with the money from the fast and the basketball marathon, the total exceeds our goal.

We hope you enjoyed the activities of the week and gained as much from your experience as you gave.

Once again, thanks for your support of a worthwhile cause.

Outfly rumor protested, apology requested

This letter is written in regard to the rumor pertaining to Outfly.

Rumors have been circulating in regard to the Outfly party and why it wasn't held at Clinton Dorm, and we feel some explanation should be given to the student body.

First of all, not one single resident of Clinton Three South was taken to the hospital because of alcohol-related effects of for any other reason. The two women rumored to have been taken to the hospital are quite upset about these slanderous remarks.

We were directly and verbally accused of preventing the party from being held indoors.

If those in charge of having the party indoors don't want the responsibility, they should say so, and not make up stories and blame others.

We feel an apology is in order.

Rewards many for college, student

By JANE JANKOWSKI

"Of course I'd be glad to help out," I said over the phone to one of the directors of the Design for Tomorrow program. "It sounds like a lot of fun."

I hung up the phone and wondered what I had done. Not only did I have to sit at a phone for three hours and call people all over the country I had never heard of, but I also had to find three people to help me.

My roommate would surely kill me for this one. Especially when she found out she was doomed to be one of the team members.

At the time I had never heard about the Wartburg Phonathon and knew just about as much about the whole Design for Tomorrow project.

I had no idea what was coming my way.

Then the training manual came in the mail. I really began to think twice about this little escapade.

To say the least, by the time the night of my team's calling came around I was terrified of phones.

Here were fifteen innocent people, each sitting behind an electronic monster about to ask people we didn't know for donations to Wartburg.

Little cow bells sat on the table in front of each participant. We were told to ring them each time we received a pledge. I laughed at that thought.

I looked at the first card in front of me. It said to call Mr. and Mrs. So-and-so in New York. As simple as that—just pick up the phone and dial to the East Coast.

My palms were sweaty. I could feel my cheeks blushing deep red, and I knew if someone answered the phone I probably wouldn't be able to talk.

One ring.

Two rings.

I thought—oh great, they aren't—

"Hello."

"Oh, hi. Is Mr. So-and-so home this evening?"

"No, he's not." (This was one case I wasn't prepared for.)

"Well, is your mother home?"

As it turned out Mrs. So-and-so was a very nice lady, understanding and she gave a nice contribution.

I rang the cow bell wildly and eagerly began the next call.

The whole evening turned out to be a fun and learning experience. The three teams that made calls that night raised a little over $5,000.

The goals of the phonathon, Steve West, Design for Tomorrow director, told me, are to raise $40,000 and increase the percentage of alumni giving to Wartburg over the past few years.

West said that after five nights of calling $26,817 has already been given to the college. This is a total of 503 "yes" pledges. Of these, 326 are new or reinstated donors.

"Students find it to be very rewarding," West said.

And I couldn't agree more.

Fourth down and 10—pun

By BILL NOLTE

Many things can happen to a guy who has a week to himself. Mostly, though, he ends up shooting a clock(killing time) or something else constructive. On the other hand, a free week at Wartburg can produce some peculiar situations with some interesting people.

I got up early Monday morning because I heard that a guest-instructor was lecturing at Voecks Auditorium. The notice said that he was from China and that he was an interesting speaker.

I hurried over to Voecks that morning and took a seat in the back row and listened to this guy give his talk. After a few minutes, though, the lights failed, and everyone was placed in an envelope of darkness, creating confusion and disorientation—a real threat to our Chinese guest.

Above the confusion and mild hysteria, however, I could hear this Chinese fellow shouting instructions.

"Will everyone please raise hands, please?" he kept repeating. When everyone finally calmed down and followed his instructions, the lights resumed their typical brilliance.

"See," he said. "Many hands make light work."

That was enough instruction for one day. I returned to my room and tossed clothes around for the remainder of the day.

Wednesday night placed Wartburg's new crop of English teachers in the enchanting home of Robert and Marion Gremmels. We were invited there for this gnu, he put the animal in a cage that did not quite have all the tiles put on the walls. Stacks of loose tile remained in the cage.

The next morning, the keeper found that the tiling job had been completed. He suspected that the gnu did the job, but he wasn't sure, so he placed the gnu in another cage with tiles yet to be put on the wall. Sure enough, the next morning the keeper found that the gnu had finished the job.

Reporters then swarmed the place and asked him how he would describe the animal.

"Oh, he's a typical gnu. . .and tiler, too."

As you can see by now, a week full of freedom at Wartburg can be fun as well as trying on the brain.

When some columnists are desperate for ideas they run a quiz, others interview well-known public figures, but when I'm in doubt, I pun. So I think it is time for me to retire for the week.

Why, you ask? I think I can best explain it with this story:

A little cabbage was in the field consulting his mother about life.

"Life," the mother said, "is a gamble. You've got to withstand storms, drought, wind, animals—not to mention bugs, lice, mold and rot. But if you don't give up, you'll thrive and grow."

"Life certainly is a gamble," the little cabbage agreed, "But there's one thing you haven't quite made clear: When do I quit growing?"

"As in any other gamble," Mother Cabbage said. "Quit when you're a head."

that reminds me of a story. . .

dinner, and we ate like horses. When we were asked if we wanted more to eat, all we could say was, "Neigh!"

All the food and talk of journalism reminded Gremmels of the time he was traveling in the outback of New Zealand where he met up with a tribe of cannibals. The chief of the tribe asked him what his job was back home. Gremmels replied that he was the editor of a local newspaper.

"Good," the chief said. "Now, you be editor-in-chief."

Thursday night I attended the Senior Dinner with one hundred and fifty or so fellow seniors. I laughed till I cried that night, also. Although nobody noticed it, my heart shed a few tears at that dinner, but I think May Term will help me forget.

Friday morning I got up early because I wanted to visit the zoo in Waterloo. You didn't know that Waterloo had a zoo, did you? Well, at this zoo in Waterloo, they had a gnu with an interesting story.

The animalkeeper told me that when he first got

Page perils: incompetency, or bad luck?

By BILL MARTIN

Those of you read the Page and weren't too hung over during Outfly might have noticed my latest venture in the field of communications.

I had the privilege of editing the Page, and I, like Dr. Frankenstein, produced a monster.

And, like the monster, my edition of the Page will be remembered with horror.

There might also be some humor in the whole thing somewhere, but I haven't noticed it yet.

Doing the Page is not really that difficult. The editor simply gets the daily calendar from the secretary of the Student Union, collects the announcements in Luther Hall and goes over to Neumann House to type them up, lay everything out and get the finished product over to the print shop by 3:30 p.m.

I had some problems, but I managed to get that much done. The calendar and announcements were easy enough to find. The typing took a while, because I kept hitting the "f" every time I wanted to hit the "b."

Laying everything out wasn't that easy, either. The "Wartburg Today" section is usually surrounded is this really necessary?

by a "two-point" line, and if you've never tried it before, the damn stuff just doesn't go on in a straight line.

I finally got it all done and had the final product over to the print shop two hours before deadline.

After I'd seen a copy of my Page, I decided I should have invested that two hours in editing—also known as "looking for mistakes."

There were errors, some of them minor, some of them glaring.

The minor mistakes included a few editorial comments, some misspellings and an awkward phrase.

The glaring mistakes were a little worse.

"Positions for next year's student committees are available from Student Activities Director Jan Crowley. Positions include."

"Radiation biology students already registered or interested are asked to meet."

My last mistake was the worst one, but no one has said anything about it to me, yet.

"Clown Worship this Sunday in Buhr Lounge."

I have some radical views on religion, and expected "A Religious Perspective" would result from that little double entendre, but so far, so good.

I have received an officially edited copy of my Page from my adviser, who also supervised the Page.

He made it clear that when he wrote "SO" next to something it meant "write out." "AWK" stood for "awkward." "MW" meant "missing word."

He did not tell me whether "INC" stood for "incomplete" or "incompetent."

Petition shows protests to campus-wide fast

The Student Affairs Office has received a complaint from students about the regulations for a campus-wide fast.

Don Juhl, director of Food Service, said a list of 131 student signatures was turned into the office after last week's Ujamaa fast.

Students who signed the petition said the system of giving up a meal is not fair to those who do not wish to participate in a fast.

Juhl said one fast per term is allowed by the administration. He added that if 60 percent of the students sign away their meal, it is canceled and the money that would have been used to prepare for the meal is given to a charity.

"It's not that we are against fasting for a good cause, but we feel the system should offer other alternatives," senior Brian Danielson, supporter of the petition, said.

Juhl said arrangements are being planned to remedy the situation. One option, he said, would be to move the percentage of students required to sign meals away for the fast from 60 to 75 percent. Another alternative would provide sack lunches or refunds.

"If everyone knew there was another alternative, a fast would never get off the ground," Juhl said.

Resident assistants, managers chosen for '81-82 academic year

Resident assistants and resident managers have been chosen for the 1981-82 school year, according to Donna Hunter, director of residential life.

Youngberg; freshmen Jeff Conrad, Carol Garbrecht, Barb Hanna, Rachel Rivers and Yvonne Waller.

Resident Managers are juniors Paul Blobaum, Gary Shanks, Dave Weiss and Herlanda Williams.

Floor and house assignments will be made before housing sign-ups begin this week.

Hunter was pleased with the selection of the new residential life staff.

"We are very excited about the staff's enthusiasm and quality," she said.

Interaction encouraged in GER

Interaction between students, Williams said.

"This really wasn't feasible this year because upperclassmen had no experience with the program and couldn't provide any background," Williams said. "But after more students have had the experiences themselves, we hope that interaction will increase not only between students of the same class, but also among freshmen and upperclassmen."

"Encouraging interaction should be much easier next year after a greater percentage of the campus has been exposed to and experienced the programs themselves," Williams said.

Wartburg's Summer Term made to fit non-traditional student Wartburg College's 1981 Summer Term has been designed to appeal to the non-traditional student, according to Dr. C. Robert Larson, Summer Term director.

"Many Summer Term students are not in the 18-to-22-year age bracket," he said. "So Wartburg's summer offerings are designed to reach adults, senior citizens and high school students as well as college-age students."

In addition to three-week terms and six-week terms, shorter workshop courses are offered. In June, there will be a one-week institute for Lutheran school teachers, a two-week course in human relations, a two-week reading workshop and a week long workshop entitled "Music with the Handicapped Child."

Any of these shorter courses may be taken for credit.

The 60 Summer Term courses include titles such as Drugs and Personal Health, Futuristics, Principles of Accounting, Creative Writing, Local Flora, Educational Psychology, Painting and Microcomputers for Home and Business. The first Summer Term is June 1 through July 10; the second from July 13 through Aug. 21.

Experienced netters hope to move up in IIAC

By KEVIN BASKINS

Wartburg's tennis team will be looking to improve its third place finish in the last year's conference tournament, but a league championship will be tough to come by, according to Coach Don Canfield.

The Knights, who finished behind Central and Luther last year, will be looking to four returning lettermen and a set of twins from Colombia, South America, to contend for the team's top six spots.

Among the four returning lettermen is senior Matt Harms, who has played number one for Wartburg the last three years.

members besides the Ramirez twins. They are Perry Fruhling, Owen Greenough, Todor Krecu, Edwin Lau and Kevin McDonald.

Canfield said that while it is too early to determine a starting line-up, he looks for "consistent and strong performances from our one through three man spots."

Canfield looks for his team to be balanced, but said "in order to win, we must be able to win in our fourth through sixth flights."

Canfield also said the highlight of the schedule will be the Wartburg Invitational April 3 and 4 with Central, Drake, Luther and Northeast Missouri State.

1981 TENNIS SCHEDULE

April 1	UNI	Waverly
April 3-4	Wartburg Invitational	Waverly
April 7	Upper Iowa	Waverly
April 11	Buena Vista-Dubuque	Waverly
April 17-18	Cornell Invitational	Mt. Vernon

April 27	Upper Iowa	Fayette
April 28	Luther	Decorah
April 29	UNI	Cedar Falls
May 1-2	Central-Simpson-William Penn	Pella
May 8-9	Iowa Conference Meet	Indianola

Also returning are senior Jeff Overson, who combined with 1980 graduate John Beck to place third in the IIAC third flight doubles last year, and sophomores Kirk Vogel and Tim Kurtz, who placed third in the IIAC fifth and sixth flights a year ago.

Canfield also expects good play from Carlos and Fernando Ramirez, a set of identical twins from Cali, Colombia.

Canfield said the pair are "extremely fine players."

Other members of last year's squad who return are seniors Marty Buchhelm and Dave Langholz, junior Byron Allmandinger and sophomores David Farner, Steve Dunagan, Bill Peters and Ed Sathoff.

The team will also have five other freshmen

Although the Invitational is slated to be played indoors at this time, Canfield said it could possibly be held outside, depending on the weather.

Wartburg will also host another invitational April 24 and 25 with Central, Coe, Grinnell and William Penn participating.

The Knights will close their season May 8 and 9 with the IIAC Tournament at Simpson.

Canfield said at this time Central looks untouchable and he thinks Luther, Simpson, Dubuque, William Penn and Wartburg will all be fighting for second place. He said that he does not anticipate strong teams from Upper Iowa and Buena Vista.

The netters open their season April 1 with a match here against UNI.

Fernando Ramirez, a freshman from Cali, Colombia, returns a serve during a workout at the tennis courts. Ramirez and his twin brother Carlos are expected to see a lot of action for the team this spring.

Senior Matt Ellis, who was named to the Basketball Weekly All-American team, pumps before letting go with a shot in a game against William Penn earlier this season. Junior Tony Burbach looks on as does Penn's Gerald Reece (15), who also earned All-American honors.

Center Matt Ellis Named to BB Weekly's All-American list

By JON GREMMELS

Matt Ellis, senior basketball center, has been recognized as an All-American by Basketball Weekly magazine.

Ellis, 6'6", was selected by basketball writers to the NCAA Division III Third Team in the publication's March 26, 1981 edition. In three years of varsity ball at Wartburg, Ellis totalled 1406 points and 752 rebounds. Those figures rank him third on the all-time scoring list and sixth on the rebounding list.

This past season Ellis scored 550 points and pulled down 242 rebounds. As a junior he had 505 points and 300 rebounds.

"I was surprised and honored," Ellis said about receiving the recognition. He added, however, that, "this could not have been possible without the other 13 guys on the team, the coaches, my parents and the fans."

He added, though, that he was not on the NCAA ballot for All-American honors, selected by the coaches, so he won't be honored by them.

Ellis, who barely escaped with his life after being struck in the head with a shot put in ninth grade, was named to the first team All-Iowa Conference squad as a junior and senior, after earning second-team honors as a sophomore.

William Penn's Gerald Reece, who was named the Iowa Conference's Most Valuable Player this season, was also honored by Basketball Weekly. He was named to the second team NCAA Division III squad.

Return of veterans has Wolff howling

By BILL MARTIN

The return of two starting pitchers and the starting infield has Coach Darold Wolff optimistic about this year's softball team, even though the squad's leading hitter last year, graduated.

Outfielder Kathy Laufer graduated last spring, taking with her a .324 average, three home runs and 17 RBIs. But the starting infield committed only 23 errors in 21 games and the pitchers finished with 9-2 and 7-3 records.

The Knights have eight letterwinners back, six of them seniors: pitcher Sandy Buhrow, who had a 9-2 record and a 2.00 ERA last year, and is one of the Knights co-captains this season; second baseman Jill Crouse, who hit .279; third baseman Jane Jankowski, .265; shortstop Barb Franzen, .242; right fielder Tami Worby, .156 and first baseman Jo Ross, the squad's other co-captain, who hit .227 last spring.

The other two returning letterwinners are junior outfielder Suzette Luepke, .288, and sophomore pitcher Nancy Delp, who finished the year with a 1.28 ERA and a 7-3 record.

"Both Buhrow and Delp throw well, have good control and have been working hard this spring," Wolff said.

"For a freshman, Delp threw especially well last spring. She's got excellent control, walking only 14 batters in 66 innings last year."

Wolff still has to find a catcher and some hitting to replace Laufer's bat before the season starts.

Karen Smalley, last year's catcher, transferred to Central Michigan, and Wolff said he is not sure who would replace her, but it could be sophomore Penny Loos or freshman Brenda Smith.

Finding some hitters might be harder than finding a catcher. The Knights best returning hitter is Buhrow, who drove in nine runs and hit .323, but had only 31 official at-bats last season.

"We have to be sharper offensively and hit in crucial situations," Wolff said.

"We stranded 16 runners in our final game last year. We out-hit the other team but lost 7-3. We just didn't help ourselves."

"We basically have the same people as last year, although we will have to replace Laufer," Wolff said.

"Our pitching and infield are both adequate. If both have good years, we should be in all the games we play."

Wolff said the Knights will still have to show improvement over last year because there are more division II teams on the schedule this year, including UNI, Grand View, Northwestern and Loras.

"We'll have to get better. The wins might not come as easily as they did last year," Wolff said.

The pitching staff looks like Wolff's biggest asset.

The Knights will begin their season March 31 with a double-header against Central at Pella.

The state tournament is scheduled April 30-May 2 in Fort Dodge.

The Knights will host the sectional tournament April 24 and 25 and the Region Six tournament May 7-9.

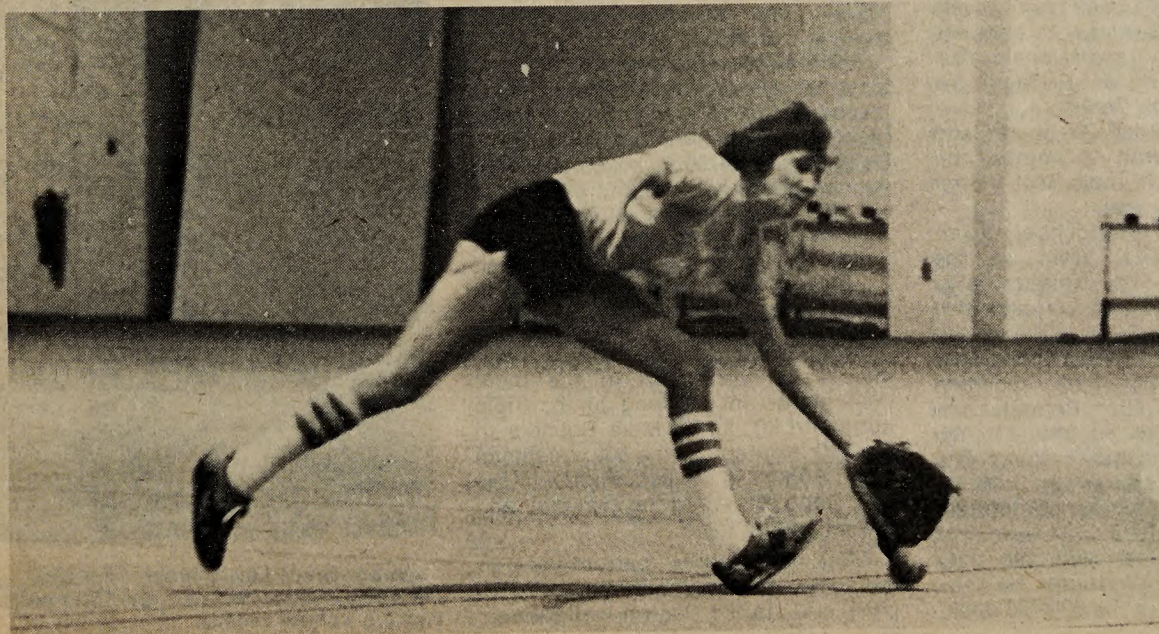

Wartburg automatically qualifies for the 16-team, double elimination tournament because it will host it, but Wolff wants his team to earn its spot in the tourney.

"We'd be seeded 16th if we qualify only because we are hosting it," Wolff said.

"Our goal is to qualify for the regional tournament via the state tournament."

Wuertz seeks improvement in IIAC

By KEVIN BASKINS

Even though the Wartburg men's track team has lost All-American runner Jim Thompson through graduation, Coach John Wuertz has high hopes for this year's squad to better last year's fifth-place finish in the IIAC meet.

The Knights will be looking to eight returning lettermen to form the nucleus of this year's team.

Among the returnees is senior Doug Rogers, who earned All-American honors last fall in cross country.

Rogers won the mile this past weekend in a triangular with Cornell and Loras and placed second in the two-mile run, an event in which he has already come close to breaking the school record this year.

Sophomore Dennis Washington has already bettered his school record in the long jump with a jump of 22'1" at UNI. Wuertz said that Washington has been consistent for him in this event, jumping over 21 feet most of the time.

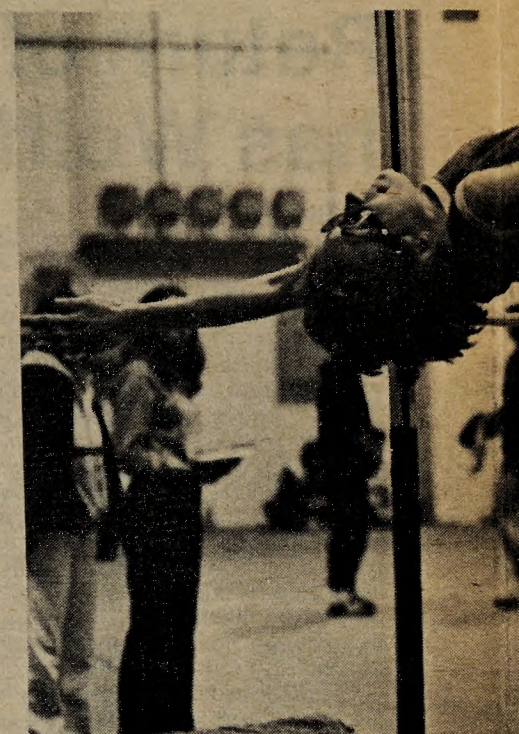

Washington has also been valuable to Wuertz as a sprinter, running on the sprint relay team and in the 60-yard dash. Washington finished second in the 60 last Friday with a time of :06.74. He also finished second in the long jump and triple jump with leaps of 21'3½" and 42'1".

Junior Brent Lewis set a school record in the 300-yard dash this spring with a time of :33.08 at UNI. Lewis placed first in this event Friday with a time of :33.35, as well as anchoring Wartburg's winning sprint team Friday night, which clocked in at 1:15.29. That time bettered by one second the old school record set in 1979. Washington and freshmen Tom Gauerke

Three freshmen at Wartburg have track-meet officials running for the record book this spring when they take to the high jump pit.

Beth Buckley, Becky Ebert and Jim Paige have all set indoor track records for the Knights this year, and if they have their way, the officials will have to go for the books a few more times.

Paige broke the men's record in his first meet of the season when he leaped 6'7". With that jump he surpassed junior Rod Feddersen, who went 6'5" two years ago, for the school and fieldhouse records. Amazingly, he had only had one day of practice before the meet.

Paige said he was surprised with the jump, but added that he was in good condition after spending the winter as a starter for the junior varsity basketball team. In fact, the coach of that team, John Kurtz, talked Paige into going out for track, according to Paige.

The 6'5" Paige said that he hopes to jump 6'8" during the outdoor season. If he does reach that height, he would break the Wartburg outdoor record by more than four inches. Laird Yock is the current record holder. He went 6'3½" in 1966.

As a student at Dike High School, Paige's best jump was 6'4". He also placed fourth in the high jump in the state meet as a junior. Paige also runs in the 440-yard dash and competed in several relays in high school.

Track Coach John Wuertz said, "Paige should

Track team to Indianola for Simpson Invitational

Wartburg's men's track team travels to Indianola this Saturday to compete in the Simpson Invitational after winning a triangular last Friday in the Physical Education Center.

The Knights tallied 80 points and ran past Loras, with 45 points, and Cornell, with 14, in their final indoor home meet of the year.

Wartburg broke one school record and captured nine firsts in the 15-event meet. The Knights also claimed 10 second places and five thirds.

Junior Brent Lewis, sophomore Dennis Washington and freshmen Tom Gauerke and Rich Barnett combined to take one second off the school record in the four-lap relay. The four toured the course in 1:15.29, eclipsing the old record of 1:16.29, which was set in 1979.

Senior Neil Mullen was the only double-winner for Wartburg. He took first-place honors in the 60-yard dash,

:06.36, and in the 60-yard high hurdles, :07.94.

The Knights also garnered firsts in six other events. Freshman Jim Paige leaped 6'4" to claim the top spot in the high jump. Other winners were senior Doug Rogers, 4:20.65 in the mile run; sophomore Brad Smoldt, 47'5½" in the shot put; sophomore Bill Puffett, 1:19.42 in the 600-yard run; Lewis, :33.35 in the 300-yard dash and sophomore Brad Knutson, 2:23.64 in the 1000-yard run.

Second-place honors went to freshman Todd Martensen in the mile; Washington in the long jump, triple jump and 60; junior Mike Boender in the 440; Knutson in the 600; freshman Steve Rogers in the 880; Mullen in the 300; Doug Rogers in the two-mile and the mile relay team.

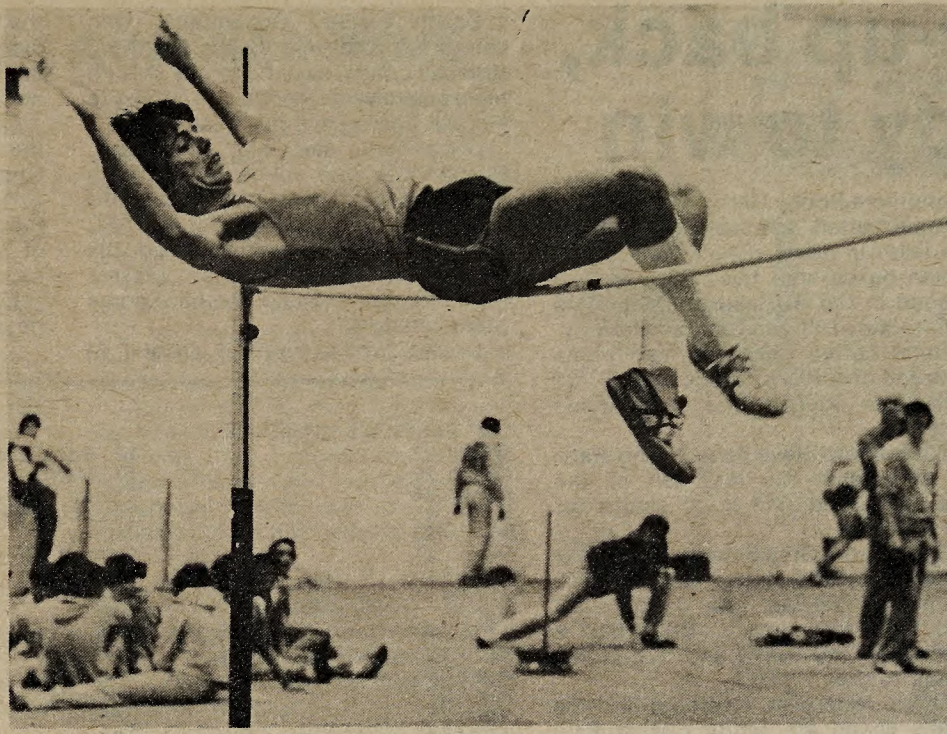

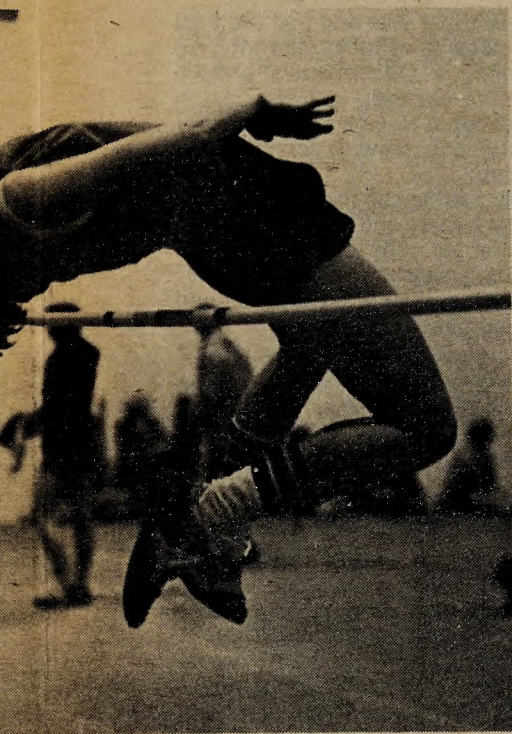

After the Knights' performance in Indianola, they head to Pella April 4 to participate in the Central Invitational.

Senior Doug Rogers, a cross country All-American circles the track in a recent meet. Rogers is expected to be the Knights' top man in the distance events this spring.

Junior Brent Lewis breaks the tape, giving a Wartburg indoor record in the 300-yard dash and owns a school record.

barely missed it in our last meet."

Ebert's best jump in high school was 5'5", but she thinks she is jumping better now than then. "I feel that I am stronger now in the high jump than I was in high school, so I feel better about jumping," said Ebert who also holds the school record in the 60-yard low hurdles.

Buckley has finished second to Ebert four times this spring, but the one time she beat Ebert, she also set the Wartburg record at 5'5". Ebert came back and upped the mark to 5'6", but Buckley has been consistently reaching 5'4 and 5'5" to keep the two jumpers fairly even.

Buckley, who jumped 5'5" as a sophomore at Webster City High School, has been sidelined by an ankle injury lately, but Coach Liz Wuertz expects her to be back in action during the outdoor season.

"Both Beth and Becky make a great contribution to the team," Wuertz said. She added that "both run good quarters," in the mile relay.

"We're working on body strength and flexibility," Wuertz said. "Both have their approaches down."

Because Palge, Buckley and Ebert all have three more years of eligibility after this season, the official scorers may have to continue to jump up for the record book every time one of the three jumps during the next three years.

Knight women to move outside seeking records

By JON GREMMELS

With a record-setting indoor season almost completed, the Wartburg women's track team has begun to set its sights on the outdoor records.

Coach Liz Wuertz said this has been her best year at the helm and she has been "pleasantly surprised" with this year's squad.

"We have broken school records in nine of 15 events this spring," Wuertz said, "and I think we should improve some records outdoors."

Wuertz said the high jump, mile, half-mile, four-lap relay and mile relay have been the team's strongest events this season.

"The girls are great to work with," Wuertz said. "They have a good attitude and have worked hard."

One of the strengths of the squad has been junior Liz Mitchell. She has established school records in the half-mile and the mile and also on the mile relay team, which holds the school record.

"Liz is a tremendous athlete," Wuertz said. "She could run something different every week and do well. Her best event is the half-mile."

Mitchell's best time in the half-mile this season is 2:27, although Wuertz said she ran a 2:15 half in high school and as a college freshman at the University of Iowa.

Mitchell, who attended Iowa Central Junior College last year before transferring to Wartburg, also ran in the Big Ten Indoor and outdoor meets while at Iowa.

Pat Yount is the only senior on the young squad, according to Wuertz. Yount runs a leg on the four-lap relay team, which broke the school record with a time of 1:30.32 last Friday, and also competes in the 60-yard dash.

Women tracksters take first place in four-team meet; Coe second Wartburg's women's track team tuned up for this Friday's Knights Invitational by taking first place in a four-team meet in the P.E. Center last Friday.

The Knights bettered four school records as they piled up 49 points. Coe was second with 37, followed by Cornell with 25 and Loras with 16.

Wartburg claimed six of the 12 first-place honors and added four second-place finishes for the evening.

Junior Liz Mitchell was involved in three of the winning performances. She claimed the 880-yard run in 2:26.77 and ran legs for the four-lap and mile relay teams, both which captured first.

Freshman Becky Ebert equalled her school record in the high jump, as she claimed first place with a leap of 5'6". She also ran a leg on the winning mile relay team and topped the school record, which she held, in the 60-yard low hurdles, despite finishing fourth.

She had a time of :09.26, besting her old mark of :09.45.

Senior Pat Yount, sophomore Carlene Schipper and freshman Shella Lane teamed with Mitchell to win the four-lap relay in a new-record time of 1:30.32, shaving two seconds off the previous record.

Lane also broke her own school record in the 300-yard dash, although she placed second, with a time of :40.73. Her old best time was :41.39.

Another freshman, Kelly Goodwin, also broke a school record which she owned. Goodwin was clocked at 12:23.14 in the two-mile run, finishing first and taking nearly seven seconds off her old time. Goodwin took second in the mile in 5:38.58.

The mile relay team, which included sophomore Carolyn McClure and freshman Sue Ceynar, as well as Mitchell and Ebert, won with a time of 4:24.72, three seconds better than runner-up Coe.

The other first-place winner for the Knights was freshman Julie Harding. She won the long jump with a jump of 15'8½".

Lane took second in the long jump, while Ceynar was the runner-up in the 440-yard dash.

Loras' Rose Noesges was the only runner to break a fieldhouse record in the meet. She ran the 60-yard low hurdles in :08.9, breaking the old record of :09.08, which she set last year. Noesges also captured first place in the 60-yard dash.

Other winners in the meet were Cornell's Tina Bush in the shot put and Coe's Dodie Gull (mile), Cathy Wilson (440) and Kim Kleckhoefer (300).

Cornell and Coe will be back at Friday's Knights Invitational, which is set to begin at 6 p.m. in the P.E. Center. Other teams at the meet will be Central, Buena Vista and Wartburg.

Starting line-up back, Knights ready to win

By KEVIN BASKINS

With all of last year's starting line-up back, the Wartburg baseball team should be able to improve on its 9-23 record of a year ago.

The Knights are opening the season this week with their annual trip to Texas.

The Knights finished with a 6-6 mark in the conference last year to tie with Simpson for fifth place.

Wartburg returns two All-IIAC picks from a year ago. Sophomore Mark Merritt, who pitched a no-hitter and led the league pitchers with a 1.75 ERA, and senior outfielder-pitcher Charlie Fredrick, who batted .372 in the conference and .320 over all.

The team also returns first baseman Bob Reiter. He led the Knights in batting with a .321 average last year and was an All-IIAC pick two years ago as a sophomore. Reiter also led the team in RBI's with 12 and doubles with five last season.

Rounding out the infield for Wartburg are juniors Mark Arjes at second base, Reece Dodd at third base and sophomore Bobby Garriss at shortstop.

Arjes batted .290 last year and led the team in home runs with five and stolen bases with five. He also was second in the RBI and doubles stats with totals of 11 and four respectively.

Dodd batted .280 with two home runs and nine RBI's. Garriss batted .181 with three doubles and three stolen bases.

Sophomore Steve Schulz, who started at catcher the last half of the season, batted .315 in 10 games for the Knights.

Sophomore Greg Schmitz and junior Mike Ward, who started with Fredrick in the outfield last year, batted .197 and .068 respectively. Both had a home run, four RBI's and two stolen bases to their credit.

Other lettermen returning to this year's squad are senior pitcher Paul Grotelueschen, who had an 0-2 record last year, and juniors Gregg Mohl, who played in the infield and batted .291, catcher Tom Kloes, who hit .133, and pitcher Mark Neal, who compiled a 1-5 record.

Coach Earnest Oppermann, who enters his 33rd year as the Wartburg baseball coach, says he thinks that no team can lose more than two games to win the conference this year.

Oppermann said that right now, Buena Vista, who will be defending its conference title from last year, looks like the team to beat out for the IIAC championship. Oppermann said the Beavers return quite a few players from last year's squad and have some good catchers.

Luther, which finished second to the Beavers last year and had the best over-all record of any team in the conference, is Oppermann's preseason pick for second.

Central could also be considered for the conference crown, according to Oppermann.

"I think they've had the best material the last two years and they return a lot of seniors, so they'll have a lot of experience," said the veteran skipper.

Oppermann thinks his club should be as tough as anyone.

Three-time All-IIAC pick seeks one more win in Texas

By RANDALL SCHROEDER

What would be the goals of a three-year All-Conference pitcher this season? Just to win one more game in Texas. One game. Not much to ask from a .300 hitter and a top pitcher.

"We have never won more than one game on the Texas tour in all the years I have been here," said Fredrick. "This year we hope to take three."

The next big question is, does Fredrick think this year's edition of the Knights can do it?

"I think we are more prepared this year than any year I have been here," Fredrick said. "We've been outside already, something that has never happened before. The club looks a great deal better."

"The ability is there. It remains to be seen if we can use it," he added.

The question still gets back to what the Wartburg co-captain sees for himself this season.

"I'd like to keep my batting average consistent," Fredrick said.

Fredrick has never batted below .319 at Wartburg, and has a lifetime average of .321.

"Getting All-Conference for a fourth year would be nice, but I would rather have the team have a good season than get another award."

Right now Wartburg Baseball Coach Earnest Oppermann sees Fredrick as one of his top two pitchers along with sophomore Mark Merritt of Dubuque.

"At least that's the way it looks right now," Oppermann said. "Things could change down south."

That is exactly what happened in Texas last year. Merritt won a spot in the starting rotation in Texas, according to Oppermann. Merritt went on to throw a no-hitter and post the lowest ERA in the conference, 1.75.

Fredrick describes his fellow pitching ace as "tougher than hell."

It seems that all of Fredrick's coaches like working with him.

"He is an outstanding individual," Oppermann said. "He's very coachable. He does like to know why you do a certain thing, but a college coach should explain why."

Fredrick's former high school coach, Jim Denner of Waverly-Shell Rock, said Fredrick is a hard worker.

"He worked hard and long," Denner said. "I would have to say Charlie is in the top half dozen pitchers I've worked with at W-SR."

What makes Fredrick an effective pitcher is his control, Oppermann said.

"He has a fair fastball and a good curve," he said, "but he's gotta have control or he doesn't win."

Denner also said Fredrick was effective with his curve in high school.

"He had an excellent high school curve," Denner said. "He could throw the curve for strikes and that made his fast ball more effective."

Fredrick said that he likes to change speeds a great deal.

"On a good day I will use my curve for a strike-out pitch," he said.

Besides being an effective pitcher and hitter, Fredrick is also an outstanding outfielder.

Oppermann will use Fredrick because he can cover ground.

"He's fast," Oppermann said. "He also has an uncanny sense of where the ball is coming down, and when Charlie gets there, he drops few."

Denner also gave Fredrick high marks in fielding when he was in high school.

"He could cover ground," Denner said, "and I never saw him drop a ball he could reach."

Even with praise heaped upon him, however, Fredrick would still rather see the Knights have a good season.

"It's not up to me, but I want a good year. I still would like to see us 9-3 in the conference."

"I think we should be in the race until the end. Luther and Buena Vista have lost personnel and that should help."

"I'm confident."

Charlie Fredrick, a senior, practices slides in the chilly spring air. Fredrick, a three-time All-Iowa Conference performer, is expected to be the Knights' team leader in their quest for the league crown.

Pitching the big question mark

"We should have good fielding, speed and hitting," he said.

Right now his biggest question mark is pitching, even though 11 of the 36 players on the roster are listed at that position.

"We're looking for brilliance," Oppermann explained. "The numbers are there, but brilliance we don't know."

"We have Merritt, who has established himself as a good pitcher. But sometimes when pitchers have a good reputation, teams will try a little extra harder against them," Oppermann said.

He also said one of the major advantages of the Texas trip is the opportunity to get a good look at several pitchers in stiff competition before league play starts.

Oppermann said that although his squad was only mediocre at the catching spot last year, it should be improved this year from last year's experience.

He added that the experience his team lacked last year shouldn't hinder Wartburg this year.

"Schmitz, Schulz, Garris and Merritt all started as freshmen last year," Oppermann explained.

"The transition from high school to college is difficult. There is no one to really get you ready for a game like pep rallies and families. They have to learn to prepare for a game mentally on their own.

"They also have to get used to playing new places as well as other changes they have to adapt to."

Oppermann said he would like to see his team's overall record be over .500 and see the co-captains for this year's squad, Reiter and Fredrick, earn All-Conference honors again.

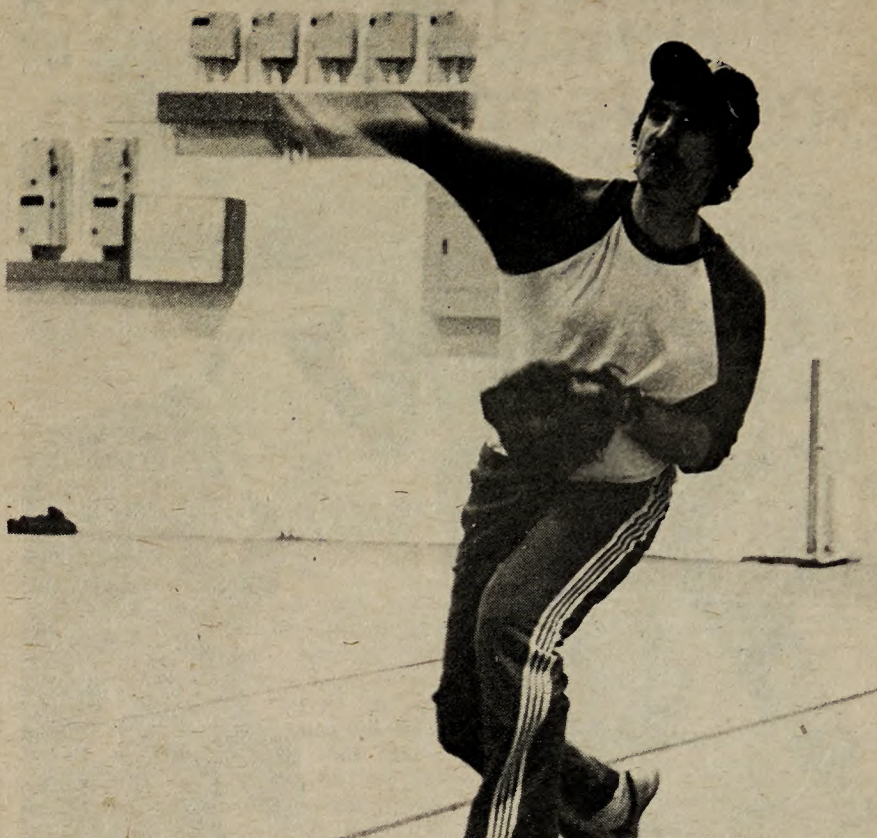

Oppermann also has several good freshmen to look at this year.

Pitcher Matt Lenguadoro, infielder Bobby Hansen and outfielder Greg Nevenhoven, who was an All-Star centerfielder in high school, head the list of newcomers.

Oppermann also mentioned infielder-pitcher Greg Stark, catcher Dave Arndt, pitcher-outfielder Rick Hueser, pitcher Dave Armstrong and outfielder Ken Bradbury as having excellent potential.

Following the week-long Texas trip, the Knights play a double-header in Ames against Iowa State April 1 before opening the conference season April 4 against Luther in Waverly.

The Knights will also host games with Dubuque, Central, Loras, Iowa and UNI during the season, which ends May 5 at Coe.

Junior Gregg Mohl throws the ball to a teammate during infield practice. The baseball team is currently on a week-long trip to Texas.

Inexperienced golfers may have uphill battle

By JON GREMMELS

Wartburg's golf team may have an uphill battle this season with only two lettermen back from last year's squad which placed fifth in the conference.

Senior Dave Unmacht and sophomore Pete Steinhauer are the lettermen, but other than those two Coach Roger Bishop said he has "a pretty unknown team."

"Steinhauer shot better than Dave last year," Bishop said, "but Dave is usually pretty consistent. I think both should be around 80 this year."

Although Bishop has not seen his team in action this year, he has several prospects who have good credentials. He said he has had good reports on two freshmen, Scott Klever and Dan Unmacht, Dave's brother.

"Klever should be competitive," Bishop said, "and Unmacht is pretty good."

Another prospect is sophomore Kevin Baskins, who was ineligible last year but had a good high school background at Columbus Junction.

Other members on the team include senior Randy Stanek, junior Jim

However, Bishop added that averages can vary a great deal from year-to-year, depending on the weather conditions.

"On windy, cold days the scores will be high," Bishop said. He noted that last year a tournament at William Penn was snowed out and two years ago at the conference meet, the wind was blowing at 40 m.p.h., which played havoc with many scores.

Bishop will have to call on several inexperienced players to fill out the squad. The 10-man roster includes four freshmen, two sophomores, one junior and one senior, as well as the two veterans.

McCune, sophomore Bob Gaffney and a pair of freshmen from Waterloo, Joe Dinnebir and Greg Johnson.

Bishop sees defending IIAC champion Buena Vista and runner-up Central, "which is always strong," according to Bishop, as the conference favorites. The conference meet will be hosted by Simpson May 8 and 9 at the Willow Creek Golf Course in Des Moines. Last year's NCAA Division III Nationals were held on the same course.

"There's a lot of good golf played in the conference," Bishop said. "Most teams have at least one or two real good golfers."

Kevin Baskins, a sophomore who was ineligible for golf last year, lines up a putt in a hallway of Ottersberg House. Because no golf courses are open yet, Baskins has been forced to do his putting indoors.

Sophomore Bill Puffett rounds the curve between two Central runners during a recent meet in the P.E. Center.

Trackmen set for heavy schedule and Rich Barnett rounded out the winning team.

Senior Neil Mullen has been running in the high hurdle and sprint events for the team. Mullen won the 60-yard dash with a time of :06.36, the 60-yard high hurdles with a time of :07.94 and placed second in the 300-yard dash with a time of :33.89 Friday night.

Mike Boender, a junior, has been running the 440-yard dash for Wartburg and has been high jumping.

Sophomore Brad Knutson is expected to score points for the Knights in distance events this year. Knutson won the 1000-yard run Friday night with a time of 2:23.64 and finished in under two minutes so far this year. Rogers placed fourth in the half-mile Friday with a time of 1:59.14.

Puffett ran in the 600-yard run and 1000-yard run Friday, finishing first and third in the events. His time in the 600 was 1:19.42, and his time in the 1000 was 2:26.04.

Wuertz said Smith has been running well in the two-mile, as evidenced by his time of 9:47.32 in a triangular with Luther and William Penn earlier this season.

Martensen placed second in the mile run Friday with a time of 4:25.49. He has been close to that time all year. He was third in the 880-yard run with a time of 2:02.1. Martensen is also on

The only other two lettermen returning to this year's squad are juniors Rod Feddersen and Denis Huston, who both missed last season.

This year's brightest newcomer is freshman Jim Paige, who has already broken the school record in the high jump with a leap of 6'7".

Wuertz also intends to use Paige in some running events. Paige ran in the 440-yard dash Friday, turning in a time of :55.33 for a fourth-place finish.

The Knights should be deep in the distance and middle-distance events with sophomore Bill Puffett and freshmen Steve Rogers, Scott Smith and Todd Martensen. All four are veterans from this fall's cross country squad.

Rogers, who is a younger brother of Doug, has been running the half-mile the mile relay team.

Sophomore Brad Smoldt and freshman Tim Walljasper are currently shot putting for Wartburg, and both will throw the discus for the Knights when their season moves outside.

Wuertz said that judging by the meets he has seen so far this season, he thinks Luther and Central could be the teams to beat in the conference this spring. He pointed out that both teams have a lot of people out for track.

Simpson and the Knights should round out the upper division at the conference meet May 8 and 9, according to Wuertz.

The Knights host the conference relays for the first time ever, April 11, and the Knights Invitational May 2. The season concludes with the Iowa Conference Meet at Simpson College in Indianola.

Frosh women show promise

Several freshmen have contributed to the Knights' early success this spring. Two, Becky Ebert and Beth Buckley, have had their names added to the school record book in the high jump.

Buckley, sidelined by an ankle injury until the outdoor season, has finished first in that event once and second four times. She set the school record at 5'5" in her first-place outing several weeks ago. Ebert, however, broke that mark two weeks ago with a leap of 5'6", which she equalled last week. Ebert has placed first in the high jump in five of the Knights' six indoor meets this spring.

Ebert also runs the 60-yard low hurdles, where she has one first and three seconds, and both Ebert and Buckley have run legs on the school record-setting mile relay team.

Wuertz said, "Both girls have made

Goodwin broke the school record in the two-mile run last Friday, winning with a time of 12:23.14. She also took second in the mile run with a time of 5:38.58.

Lane holds the school record in the 300-yard dash with a time of :40.73. She also ran on the four-lap relay team which broke the school record last weekend and went 15'3 1/2" in the long jump last Friday.

Ceynar runs in the 440, is a member of the mile relay team and recently began shot putting. Last Friday she was the runner-up in the 440 and took fourth in the shot.

Sophomores Carlene Schipper and Carolyn McClure have also seen a lot of action for Wartburg. Schipper has run on the four-lap relay team, in the 60-yard low hurdles and in the 300.

McClure has run in the mile relay and the 880. She placed third in the 880 last weekend.

Four other freshmen have also placed in several meets this spring. They are Julie Harding, Kelly Goodwin, Sheila Lane and Sue Ceynar.

Wartburg will host the Knights Invitational this Friday at 6 p.m. in the P.E. Center. Buena Vista, Central, Coe, Cornell and the Knights will compete in the meet.

Ministry Board officers' terms adjusted to calendar year

The term of office for Campus Ministry Board officers has been adjusted to a calendar term with elections in January.

Previously, board members served a September to May term of office.

Junior Myrna Johnson, Board president, said electing officers during the middle of the school year would allow students to fully understand the functions of the board and know the responsibilities each office entails.

Because of the transition, Johnson resigned her position as board president. Her position has been filled by sophomore vice president Cheryl Ohrt.

Freshmen representative Amy Guetzlaff has stepped into the vice presidency and Carla Niemeyer, the other freshman representative, has filled the treasurer's position. Sophomore Deb Newton, current secretary of the board, will continue her term until January, 1981.

Positions still available on the board include Special Activities Chairperson and Worship Committee Chairperson.

Elections for those positions will take place Tuesday, March 31, and students selected will serve for only one term.

Project ID pens purchased to attempt theft reduction

Residential Life has purchased 10 invisible ink pens as part of Project I.D., a program designed to reduce theft.

The pens can be used to mark personal belongings with an ink that can be read only under ultra-violet light, and have been issued to all Residential Directors, according to Donna Hunter, director of residential life.

Students may use the pens on a check-out basis, and must call the police department to get their identification number before marking any belongings, Hunter said. The pens can be checked out from resident directors.

All items should be marked in an easy-to-find location and one where removal would be unlikely, Hunter said.

Inventories of all marked items should be kept in event of theft or for insurance purposes, Hunter added.

"We're hoping that a lot of students will participate, because it's an easy procedure and could help in crime prevention," Hunter said.

arts colleges as islands and compasses. Colleges should resist the outward pressure to conform and provide direction in the modern world.

Each candidate will be on campus for two days. The candidates will meet the Department chairs or their representatives at 1:30 p.m. on the first day according to a schedule released from the President's Office. From 2:30 to 4 p.m. candidates will meet with faculty in the Castle Room of the Student Union.

The second day the candidate is on campus, he will meet with students for breakfast at 7:30 a.m. An informal coffee for faculty is planned at 10:30 a.m. in the Den, according to the schedule.

Wartburg President Robert Vogel said the interviews are going well.

"The (Dean Search) committee believes the four are substantial people who have experience that would enable them to serve as dean at Wartburg," Vogel said.

Sousa sequel rousing success

Review by RANDALL SCHROEDER

Anyone who says that a sequel cannot be as good as the original obviously was not at "Sousa One More Time," a concert by the Wartburg Band last weekend.

The success of the concert was almost as rousing as "The Stars and Stripes Forever." A packed Neumann Auditorium was with the band and its toe-tapping music on Sunday afternoon.

The entertainment started early with the record hucksters who had better one-liners than Steve West ever dreamed of having.

The music itself was a pleasant blend of serious and light music. Anything from opera and Bach to Sousa marches was handled masterfully by the band and soloists.

Soloists David Greenhoe and Richard Scheffel were the most showy with their instruments, but it was Irene Weldon who overcame the odds to give a fine performance.

Weldon's projecting abilities overcame the band and shortcomings of Neumann with her rendition of "One Fine Day." To defeat those problems and do a fine job is no easy feat, and she did it.

In these days of Ronald Reagan, one has to be a bit suspicious of overt, flag-waving patriotism, but somehow the band's final numbers, "Stars and Stripes Forever" and "America the Beautiful," complete with the Perkins' Flag, didn't seem corny or out of place.

It was not a concert to leave one with a profound feeling, but one could not help but leave it with a good feeling.

Old man Sousa is probably quite pleased.

Orchestra to feature solo pianist

One of the foremost musicians of France will appear as a soloist with L'Orchestre du Capitole de Toulouse at Wartburg College's final Artist Series program of the 1980-81 season Saturday, March 28, according to Gerald Tebben, Artist Series director. The concert begins at 8 p.m. in Neumann Auditorium.

Pianist Philippe Entremont, who did a solo program at Wartburg in 1958, is touring with the 104 member French orchestra.

"He was a child prodigy," Tebben said. "I'd say he is on the same level as Van Cliburn."

Entremont has won acclaim for more than two decades as a concert pianist and more recently as a conductor.

Since his American debut at the age of 19 at the National Gallery in Washington, D.C., he has performed as a soloist with most of the major orchestras of the world.

He has conducted such orchestras as the Royal Philharmonic, Ensemble Orchestre de Paris and the Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields.

The orchestra, which has been directed by Michel Plasson since 1968, attained national status in France this year, after being a regional orchestra for many years.

"This is one of the reasons Toulouse is touring cheaper than most orchestras," Tebben said. "France wants the orchestra to gain the exposure of their other national symphony in Paris."

"Unless we reorganize Artist Series funding," Tebben said, "this is the only major orchestra we will have here for awhile. The $1.50 surcharge to students is still the cheapest way they will ever get to see a major orchestra."

Butikofer establishes rapport

By PATRICIA THORN

In the election last week, I voted for Jack Salzwedel and Denis Huston. In fact, I not only voted for them, I was an ardent supporter.

So, I was not thrilled when my editor called and woke me up one afternoon to tell me my assignment for the Trumpet was to interview Student Body President-elect Randy Butikofer.

I was fully prepared to ask him questions like, "I'll bet you think you're really someone, now that you won, don't you?"

What I wasn't prepared for was a real friendly guy in a Hawkeye hat with a putter in his hand.

"I don't really play golf," Randy explained. "A friend brought it over one night and left it."

I set my teeth firmly and steadied myself against his obvious ploy to appear as a nice guy. The fiend. My pen waited, poised in the air, ready to leap upon the slightest unflattering quote I could get from him.

"So," I began, "what's all this stuff you said about educating the senators?"

"In the first place, what we want to do is get out what will be expected of them before they sign up to run. When we've signed up in the past we just signed a little piece of paper, and that was it."

Randy twirled his putter and expressed how sorry he was that the spring elections for next year's Senate were coming so quickly because he wouldn't be able to get out any information about the responsibilities to those signing up.

He mentioned something about a retreat for the senators next fall to establish a "rapport".

"The senator has to feel comfortable. There are times when you don't say something during a senate meeting just because you feel a little off base."

Randy said that early next fall, as soon as the senators have been assigned to their floors, he'd like to go to the floors and "introduce ourselves so that the floors know who we are and who their representative is."

At those meetings Randy would explain to the students what the Senate does and how the students can make their comments heard.

"We're pushing for the education of the student body as well as the senators," Randy said while looping the end of the putter through his shoestring and tugging on it.

Randy said he doesn't want to waste time next year on issues that have been floating around the Senate for years, like alcohol and intervisitation policies.

"We're an American Lutheran Church school," he said. "There are just things—like 24 hour intervisitation—that we'll never have. If the Board of Regents say 'no', why waste the time arguing about it and working on it?"

Randy said he and Ross Buehler, student body vice president-elect, will start working on the energy policy (Buehler's particular favorite on their platform, Randy said) next fall.

They won't be cutting "hundreds of thousands of dollars from the budget," he said, "but, what we can do is promote an attitude."

Shattering my visions of him as an empty bag of campaign promises, Randy assured me that he would be following his platform next year.

"We talked to a lot of students when we put together our platform."

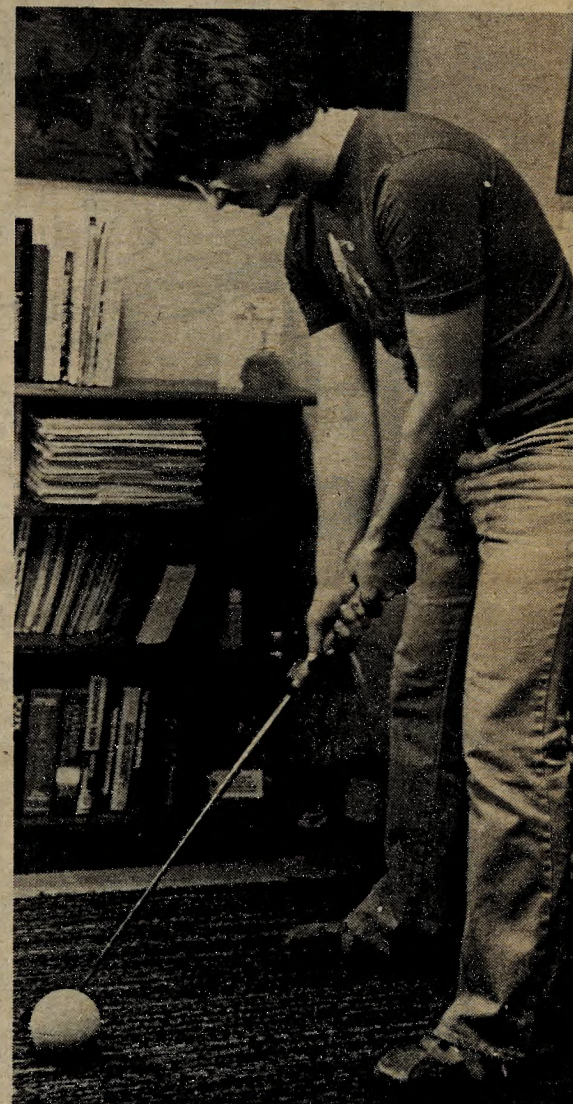

Judging from his earnest sincerity, he really is in this for the students.

Looking up from an imaginary putt, Randy grinned, "It's weird to say that we're actually going to do this. The fact that we won hasn't sunk in yet."

"I'm excited to get started. I really am."

You know, Randy, I'm sort of looking forward to it, too.

'The fact that we won hasn't sunk in yet. I'm excited to get started. I really am.'
